2022 COVID-19 Event Policy

Event attendee and employee safety are MachineMetrics' top priorities as we return to in-person activities.

While the value of in-person events is undeniable and many people and organizations are eager to return to face-to-face experiences, the associated health risk is ever changing. Given the recent changes in risk and health protocols, we reserve the right to change event rules at any time to preserve the safety of our employees, customers, partners, and contacts.

At MachineMetrics, our return-to-events approach is based on open communication and increased precautions and preparations to limit the potential for risk. At all in-person events, we commit strictly following national and local guidelines as well as ensuring that our team is equipped with masks, disinfectants, and hand sanitizers to practice safety protocols recommended by the CDC. We actively engage event hosts about the precautions they've put in place to keep our team safe. Venue size, ventilation, sanitation stands, vaccination requirements are all components that we consider when determining our event participation.

We also enable a contactless experience for both our employees and event attendees to minimize their risk of potential exposure or of spreading germs by reducing swag and other marketing handouts.

We encourage anyone with questions, comments, or concerns about our policy to reach out to our team for additional information.
